Essar & UCP may buy oil for $12 billion

President Vladimir Putin, who will meet Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi for a bilateral summit.

Essar Oil operates a 4,00,000 barrel per-day oil refinery on India's west coast and sells fuels through its 2,470 filling stations in India.

The deal will also include the Vadinar port and a power plant associated with the refinery, said one of the sources.

Through this acquisition, Rosneft will not only get an additional outlet for its oil amid supply glut but will also got to market fuels in the world's fastest growing major economy.

The Russian company will be the third international player after Royal Dutch Shell and BP to enter the Indian fuel retailing market.

India is replacing China as the driver of global oil demand and growth as its economy expands and a rising middle class buys motor vehicles.

The International Energy Agency expects India to account for a quarter of global energy use by 2040.

Rosneft

may supply Venezuelan oil to Essar's Vadinar refinery after a deal to buy a stake in the Indian company is finalised, the Indian company's managing director L.K. Gupta told Reuters in August.
